

Spring's Newest Footwear Styles

Lasts, Smart and Fashionable for Advance Season's Showing

See them in our Main Street window. They are the correct and fashionable lasts for spring. Many new creations have been brought out this season that are distinctively different from any of last year. We feature popular and exclusive lines in oxfords, slippers, walking boots, etc., for the street, business and evening wear. One of the most notable changes in the spring styles is the colorgrey, toupe, wine, being the new shades, while the brown, tan and black Russias will continue to be much worn.

We call special attention to our spring styles in the famous Thomas Corts hand made pumps and oxfords in tan and black Russias and colored buck skins, and our John Cross and Hallahan spring innovations in buck and suede leathers in the new season's shades.

"THE BEST FOR LESS" uniforms of the officers and near officers, and the bright gowns of the women, the grand march was decidedly kaleidoscopic, the moving picture being accompanied by strains of truly martial music. Bachelor and boy, matron and maid, from Logan to St. George, were there in force, and the gathering was distinctively a representative one of the State.

Governor and Mrs. Spry made their social debut under the most favorable auspices, and if good wishes mean anything, their social life at the head of State affairs seems assured.

Mrs. Helen Root, described in San Francisco as a beautiful divorcee, is at the St. Francis Hotel in that city, and, according to the press there, she, with Dr. Charles Root, her former husband, who is in Salt Lake, and baby Root, a five-year-old boy, are the trio which figure as the actors in a domestic drama which promises soon to have its climax, because Mrs. Root is in the coast city for the purpose of instituting a contest to secure possession of the boy, her only child. The story reads about like this:

"The Roots were divorced in Salt Lake City a little more than two months ago, Dr. Root securing a decree, according to Mrs. Root, on the ground of desertion.

"Because of the boy's tender years, and because of his future, Mrs. Root was chary about discussing the details of the case, though she said she was determined to have her boy with her as soon as possible, so that he may grow up under her influence. 'I have no pictures of him where I can see them, and I think I read all of the magazines and newspapers, besides any number of books,' she continued, 'simply to keep my thoughts off even the possibility of losing him.'

"According to Mrs. Root's story, she is a native of Louisville, Ky., and she was married to Dr. Root, one of the most prominent physicians or Salt Lake City, August 15, 1899.

"Mrs. Root is in San Francisco to consult with her counsel, Attorney William Thomas, relative to starting the contest for possession of the baby boy, who is now with his father."

You take a maid and a man who go out to dinner and who stand on the corner of Main and First South streets waiting for a conveyance to take them home, and who, as early as eight o'clock in the evening can't wait until they get home to express their feelings for one another, and who, in consequence, are the center of interest for a large and interested audience while demonstrating their affection, and that's going some. Of course, it is nobody's business if young love takes a turn of that kind, but it is rather amusing, especially in view of the fact that both have strenuously denied any serious intentions when quizzed by their friends. It was a grand little sight, though, and one "never-to-be-forgotten" by the coterie of enthusiasts who witnessed the affair.

The Salt Lake Chapter of the American Institute of Banking entertained their friends at an informal dance at the Odeon on Friday night, a dance as perfect in its appointments and as enjoyable as any of the affairs of the kind given at the hall since its opening. All of the notes of the orchestra were met promptly, with interest, and there was not even an overdraft from any part of the hall to mar the warmth of the reception given by the embryonic financiers to their host of friends.
